Many approached me with general inquisitiveness when I explained what I was dealing with. Toward spring, as the weather moderates, I keep a smaller and smaller fire until only two sticks of wood remain in the firebox, with a few coals between them.