What the pharma industry needs is to have better policies to retain and nurture the existing talent and equip them with necessary skills.

It may also stain or damage footwear.

People who have a mental health condition or substance abuse disorder may have resume gaps that raise a red flag for employers, and an employment specialist can help put that in context, Farley said.